The Chessa has 4 floors: on the underground floor you'll have the kitchen modernly equipped and a breakfast room with its long table of over 3 meters, the laundry, the ski room and a toilet; the corridor can be transformed on a cinema room with beamer and screen.

At the ground floor you'll have the big Suler of 62 sm (in the old time it was the barn) today a big salon with fire place, reading corner and play table; on the same floor a TV room, a music or office room, and a toilet as well as the ancient Stüva (it was in the old time the only heated room where the all family met, today an elegant old eating room with stove and connected with the kitchen with a lift for the plate only. On the first floor the 4 bedrooms - one of them is the ancient Chamma remained as in the origin - each one with its own bathroom, three are double beds and one is a children room with bunk beds plus one to pull out. At the upper floor you have the attic room with its own bathroom (jacuzzi bath) a little private sitting room with a small kitchen for the first coffee...
